Govt signs accord with NDB, ABSU to resolve Bodo issue

The government of India, through its ministry of finance, signed an agreement with the New Development Bank (NDB) and the All Bodo Students’ Union (ABSU) to resolve the Bodo issue. The agreement was signed by Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman and President of the NDB, Dr. Wenhua Yang, on February 20, 2020.

The Bodo issue is a long-standing dispute between the Bodo tribe and the government of India over land rights and autonomy. The agreement aims to address the concerns of the Bodo people and bring peace to the region.

The agreement includes financial assistance from the NDB to support the development of Assam and the Bodo area. The government has also agreed to hold talks with the ABSU to resolve the issue.

The agreement is a positive step towards resolving the Bodo issue and bringing stability to the region. The government has shown a commitment to addressing the concerns of the Bodo people and working towards a peaceful resolution.
